DAY 2

Read Luke 2:1–7

Have you ever unwrapped a present and found something totally surprising—good or bad?

Mary and Joseph's first Christmas was like that. Rome ordered everyone to travel home to be counted, so the couple trekked ninety miles to Bethlehem. There was no cozy guest room they could get in Bethlehem, so God's Son arrived where animals stayed, and His first crib was a manger. Why would the King of everything choose this entrance? Because Jesus didn't come to impress us, He came to rescue us. His humble birth proves God's love reaches from palaces to pastures and everywhere between.

Jesus traded heaven's throne for a place where animals eat out of, so we could trade guilt for forgiveness and fear for hope.

On the gift tag, write one reason Jesus is the greatest gift to you.

DAY 3

Read Luke 2:8–14

Picture it: pitch black hills, sheep dozing, shepherds yawning under cold starlight. Suddenly, the sky blazes brighter than noon, and an angel announces, "A Savior has been born to you!" Moments later, an entire army of angels fills the night with music, praising God and promising peace on earth. God did not send this breaking news to palaces or scroll it across royal courts; He chose ordinary workers to hear the good news first. That choice proves again that Jesus is the greatest gift for everyone, whatever their grades or zip code.

Why did Jesus come? His rescue plan was to bridge the gap between a perfect God and hurting people, to trade our guilt for forgiveness, and to replace fear with hope. This Christmas, give thanks for the Baby swaddled in cloths

Before the day ends, tell someone, “The best gift has already arrived, and He came for you.”

Read Luke 2:15–18

Why did Jesus come? To rescue us, bring us back to God, and prove His love is for everyone—from palace guests to night shift shepherds to kids like you. This Christmas, remember the shepherds' rush. Good news isn't meant to stay wrapped up; it's meant to be shared. You can text a friend, share a verse, or post a quick voice note today explaining why Christmas really matters most.

Wrap an empty box like a present, attach a tag that says “Jesus, the greatest gift,” and place it in your home to remind everyone why we celebrate.

Read Luke 2:19–20

Imagine the shepherds trudging back to their hills after meeting baby Jesus, the same night sky overhead, the same flocks bleating, yet their hearts were blazing with brand new hope. God's greatest gift had arrived in a manger. Jesus came to mend the broken relationship between God and people, proving we matter to Him more than any treasure

Look for ways to echo the shepherds, share one reason you're grateful with family, sing a carol, or help someone who feels left out. Let praise travel wherever you go.

“Jesus, You are the best gift ever. Fill my words and choices with praise so others hear how amazing You are.”

Spend some time thinking about the question below and journal your thoughts or share them with a parent.

What's the best gift you've been given?
